Train the Trainer

A Colorado POST Approved Instructional Methodology Course

The Train the Trainer is a 40-hour, week-long instructor development class that fulfills the Colorado POST Instructional Methodology Program requirements to be certified as an academy instructor in Colorado.

This course will prepare instructors to develop and deliver training in a variety of classroom and skills-based settings. It is a highly interactive, performance-based class. Students will have the opportunity to work with a small group, using the concepts presented during class to develop, document, and present an original training. Students will also give other shorter presentations during the week.

All of the content of this class is based on evidence-informed adult learning concepts from both academics and work-place research and will prepare students to build highly effective training.

Topics for this course include:

- Adult Learning
- Training Methodologies
- Facilitation Skills
- A Process to Build Training
- Performance Objective Development
- Using Visual Aids
- Trainer Liability
- Preparation of Lesson Plans

Students should bring a laptop computer on Thursday to use when developing their own original training materials.
